

Listen. Lean in. Launch.

How a normal mom with a laptop on a pack of juice boxes made $250,000 in 48 hours, reverse engineered so you can do it too.

HI, I'M MEG

I'm not just teaching this. I lived this.

Hi, I'm Meg. Mom, wife, and founder of The Startup Mom. I left a ten year marketing career after maternity leave. Not because the job was bad. Because I held my son for twelve weeks and something permanently shifted.

So I started an Instagram account during nap times. It hit 30K followers in 90 days with zero dollars on ads, and it is past 40K now. Everything I sell came out of that.

Faith. Family. Business. In that order.

Motherhood and ambition aren't opposites. Your kids aren't a reason to dream smaller. They're the reason you're building something.

WHY THIS GUIDE EXISTS

No launch team. No war room. Just three steps.

This fall I launched an editing tool for moms. In 24 hours it made $85,000. In 48 hours, $250,000.

We were moving houses. My kids had just had hand, foot, and mouth. I didn't have a desk, so my laptop sat on a pack of juice boxes.

It wasn't luck. It was three simple steps, and I posted every one of them before launch day:

1. Listen.

Moms kept saying filming wasn't the hard part. Editing was.

2. Lean in.

I built one simple fix. I'm the director. Claude is my editor.

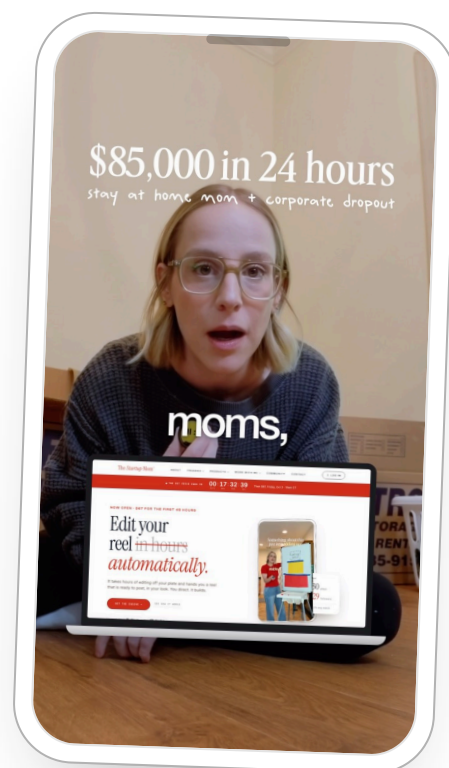

3. Launch.

I gave it to the exact moms who asked for it.

This guide breaks down each step with the real systems I used and real data behind them. Facts, not opinions.

Simple offers sell. Normal moms can do this too.

the reel where i told everyone how.

CHAPTER ONE

Listen.

The product that launches well is the one your buyers will show off without being asked.

1

LISTEN • BUYERS INTO BILLBOARDS

Ads don't launch products on socials. Buyers do.

The only launch that keeps going after launch day is the one where every buyer becomes a billboard. They use your product in public, and that use does the selling for you.

THE DATA AGREES

88%

of people trust recommendations from people they know more than any other channel.¹

49%

of consumers trust online reviews as much as a recommendation from someone they know.²

97%

of consumers read reviews before they choose. Your buyers are the ones writing them.²

People believe people. So build something people will be seen using.

LISTEN · HOW TO LISTEN

Listen for the repeated problem.

You don't need a big idea. You need the thing your people keep saying out loud.

Read your comments and DMs.

Write down every complaint that shows up twice. Twice is a pattern.

Name the transformation, not the product.

Not "an editing tool." "Post more reels and edit way less."

Find the gap between want and do.

My moms already wanted to show up on camera. The edit was the only thing standing between them and posting.

twice is a pattern. write it down.

LISTEN • THE BILLBOARD TEST

Before you build, run the billboard test.

- ☐ Will people see the result when my buyer uses it?
- ☐ Does it solve a problem they already say out loud?
- ☐ Can I explain the transformation in one sentence?
- ☐ Would a buyer naturally tell a friend how she did it?

● ONE BUYER'S REEL

200 views before

22K+ views after

+330 followers in 12 hrs

Four checks means you have a product that markets itself. Here's mine: every reel a buyer posts was edited by the engine. One tester went from about 200 views to over 22,000, and picked up 330 followers in 12 hours. Every one of those viewers saw what the engine can do.

LISTEN • LET CLAUDE DO THE LISTENING

Two prompts to find what will sell itself.

Paste your comments, DMs, or the questions people keep asking you into Claude.
Then send these, one at a time.

✱ COPY, PASTE, SEND TO CLAUDE

"Here are comments and DMs from my audience. Find the problems that show up more than once. Rank them by how often they come up and how much they seem to cost people in time, money, or stress. For the top three, tell me the transformation someone would pay for, in one sentence each."

Use this first. It turns a messy inbox into a short list.

✱ COPY, PASTE, SEND TO CLAUDE

"Here's the product idea I'm leaning toward: [your idea]. Run it through the billboard test. Will people see the result when my buyer uses it? Does it solve a problem they already say out loud? Can I explain it in one sentence? Would a buyer tell a friend how she did it? Score each one and show me how to make the weakest one stronger."

Use this second. It pressure tests the idea before you build anything.

no audience yet? paste the questions your friends ask you.

CHAPTER TWO

Lean in.

Build the foundation once, so the business runs while you're in the carpool line.

2

LEAN IN • YOUR TECH STACK

My whole stack is two tools and a connection.

1

Claude

The helper. I don't code. I talk to it, and it builds for me.

2

Kajabi

Where the business lives. Website, courses, emails, checkout, community.

3

The connection

Once they're linked, Claude works inside your Kajabi for you.

76%

of small businesses already use AI.³

You're not behind. 76% of small businesses already use AI, and 84% of them say the biggest win is getting more done in less time.³ The tools are ready. You just need the setup.

Use Claude like an employee, not a search bar.

Most people ask Claude one-off questions. The moms who scale give it a home base: who they are, who they serve, what they sell, how they sound. Then every answer comes back in their voice and fits their business.

Talk in goals.

"I want a waitlist page for my new offer," not "write me a headline."

Everything drafts first.

Nothing goes live until you say so.

Ask for the plan first.

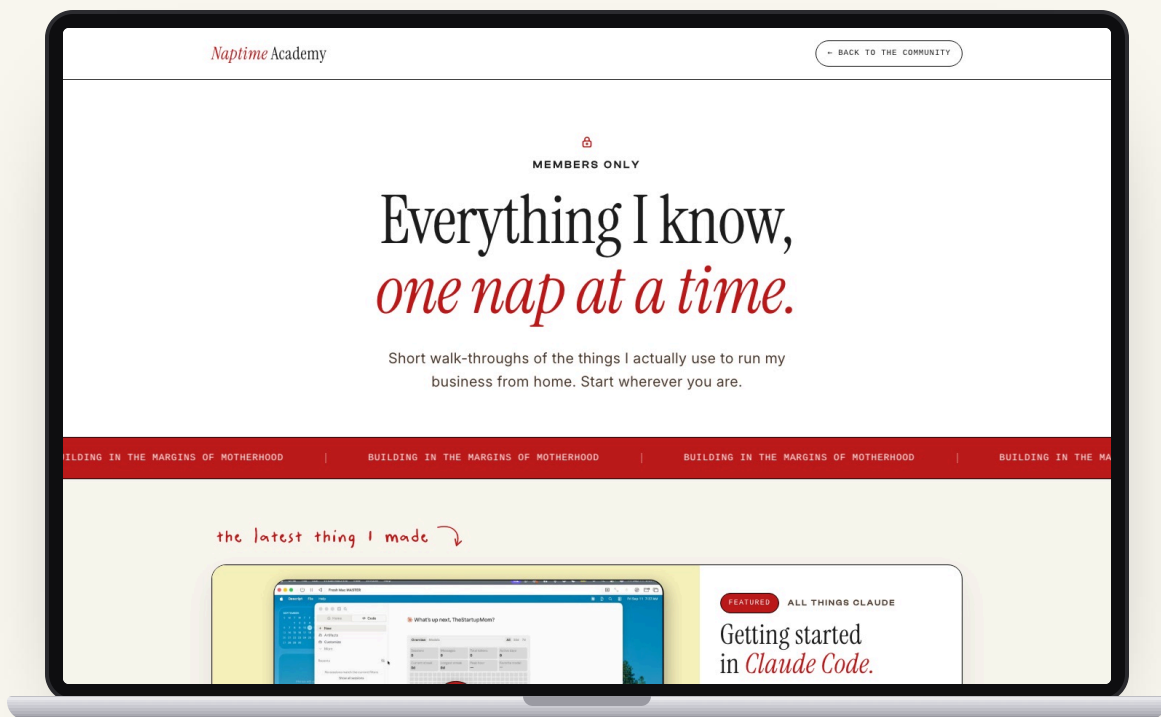

Have it lay out the steps before it builds.

want to watch me do it? turn the page.

LEAN IN · WATCH ME BUILD IT

This is where I show you exactly how.

Everything I use to run my business with Claude lives inside my community. It's called Naptime Academy: short walk-throughs of the real setups, Claude, Notion, Kajabi, walked through room by room.

Community

The Startup Moms Community, with monthly live calls and replays.

Website

Email

A 9K+ list, a daily nurture sequence, and every launch email.

Lead generation

Freebies, waitlists, and forms that tag people and start their emails automatically.

One login. No duct-taping six apps together.

And you don't need a giant audience to make it work. The average six-figure Kajabi creator has an email list of about 4,000 and just 309 paying customers.⁴

LEAN IN • CONNECT CLAUDE TO KAJABI

Connect it once. Five minutes.

This is the Kajabi MCP: a connection that lets Claude work inside your Kajabi. Here's exactly where to click.

1 IN CLAUDE: SETTINGS, THEN CONNECTORS

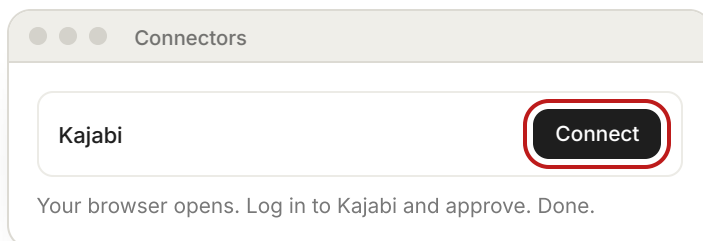

2 NAME IT, PASTE THE LINK, ADD

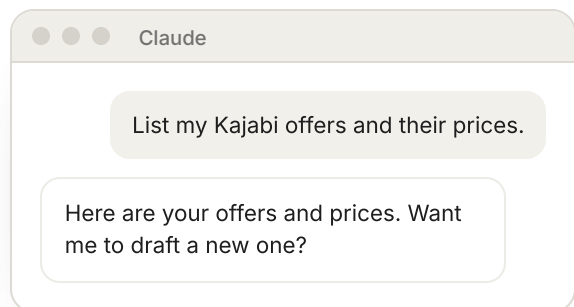

the only thing you paste.

3 CLICK CONNECT, LOG IN TO KAJABI, APPROVE

4 NOW JUST ASK

You can't break anything by asking. Tell Claude to save everything as a draft, and nothing goes live until you publish it.

LEAN IN • YOUR FIRST BUILD

Build one thing first. Your waitlist.

Before the product, build the room it launches into. A waitlist turns "I want that" into a list of people waiting to buy.

Email is still where the money is. Most marketing leaders get back $10 to $50 for every $1 they spend on it.⁵

✳ COPY, PASTE, SEND TO CLAUDE

"Build me a draft waitlist page in Kajabi for [my offer]. Add a form that tags everyone who signs up as [offer] waitlist, and draft one short welcome email that tells them what's coming."

 A page

 A tag

 One email

That's the start, not the whole thing. It's enough to have people waiting when you open the doors.

CHAPTER THREE

Launch.

Full send, to the people who asked.

3

You can't launch to people who can't see you.

Short video is where buyers decide.

63%

of people would most like to learn about a product through a short video.⁶

85%

say a video has convinced them to buy.⁶

#1

Short-form video delivers the highest ROI of any content format marketers use.⁷

So the launch question isn't "should I post?" It's "how do I post enough without losing my evenings to editing?"

✱ COPY, PASTE, SEND TO CLAUDE

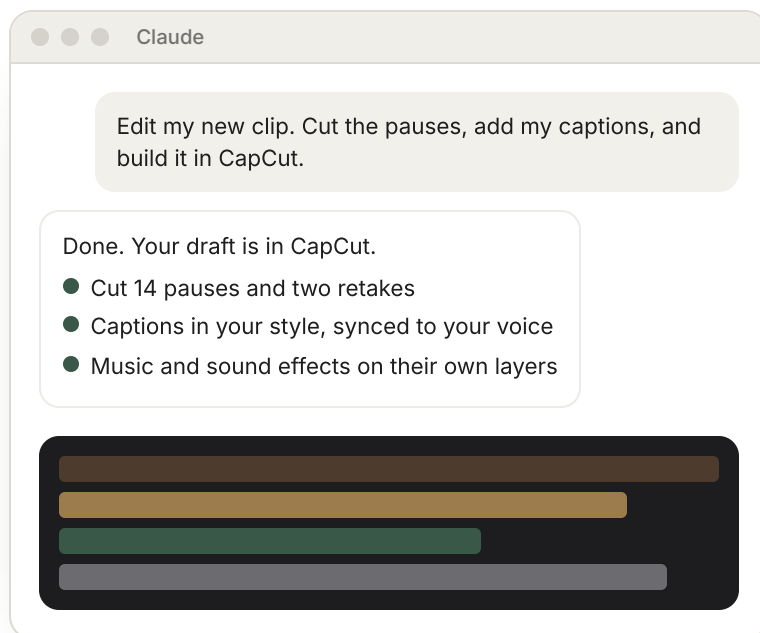

"I'm launching [my offer] to [who it's for]. Plan my launch week of short videos. Seven days, one video a day. For each one, give me the hook, the three beats, and the call to action. Day one tells the story of why I built it."

THE TOOL BEHIND THE LAUNCH

From a camera roll of clips to a finished reel. Without learning to edit.

There is no way I could show up at the level and volume I do right now without this. It's the same engine that powered the launch you just read about. You direct. It builds.

WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE

Film it.

Shoot the clip on your phone and drop it in.

It edits.

It cuts, captions, styles, and scores it in your look.

Ready to post.

A finished reel, or a CapCut draft with every layer still yours to change.

You don't have to be techie. You just have to film.

A freelance editor charges $75 to $200 a reel. When doors open, you pay once and it's yours.

THE REELS EDITING ENGINE

Doors are closed for now.

The engine is behind a waitlist until the next round. If you've been waiting for the moment to start showing up, get on the list. The waitlist hears first, before Instagram.
